

Citations may optionally have a prefix, a locator, and a suffix.

Here is some text and a citation [see @AlginaJames2005AAAtC, p. 317].

Here is some text and a citation (see Algina, Keselman, and Penfield 2005, 317).

They can also be used inline like this:

@AlginaJames2005AAAtC say blah.

Algina, Keselman, and Penfield (2005) say blah.

See other options for citations here:
http://rmarkdown.rstudio.com/authoring\_bibliographies\_and\_citations.html

Use APA Formatted Citations and References

By default, the Chicago style (author-date format) is used for citations and references. To use another style, you will need to:

- Download the appropriate CSL style file. (Find many at <https://zotero.org/styles>)
- Place the file in the same folder as the RMD file.
- Specify the name of the CSL style file in the `cs1:` YAML field.

```
---
title: "Hello World" author: "Andrew Zieffler" date: "January 22, 2019"
output:
  html_document:
    toc: true
    toc_float: true
bibliography: my_bibliography.bib
cs1: apa-single-spaced.csl
---
```